THE PILGRIM FATHERS.

BY MISS BROWNE.

The breaking waves dashed high,
On a stern and rock bound coast;
And the woods against a stormy sky,
Their giant brans lies tossed.
And the heavy night hung dark,
The hills and waters o'er,
When a band of Pilgrims stood their bark,
On the wild New England shore.

Not as the conqueror comes,
They the true hearted came.
Not with the roll of the stirring drums,
Or the trumpet that sings of fame.
Not as the flying comes,
In silence and in fear,
They shook the depths of the desert's gloom,
With their hymns of lofty cheer.

Amidst the storm they sang,
And the stars heard and the sea,
And the sounding aisles of the dim woods rang,
To the anthems of the free!
The ocean eagle soared
From its nest by the white waves foam,
And the rocking pines of the forest roar'd,
This was their welcome home.

What sought they thus afar?
Bright jewels of the mines?
The wealth of seas? the spoils of war?
They sought a faith's pure shrine.
Aye, call it holy ground,
The spot where first they trod,
They have left unstained what there they found,
Freedom to worship God!

Extract from Miss Sedgewick's late work, entitled "The Poor Rich Man, and the Rich Poor Man."

A Peep into the Poor Rich Man's House.

As our readers may have anticipated, Susan at once entered into Harry's views: and in a short time, she and her family were transferred to part of a small house in Broome street, New York. One room served as kitchin, parlor and bed room. It was furnished only with articles of the first necessity. There was a snug little bed-room for Uncle Phil, which he said suited him exactly; and a comfortable good sized one for Charlotte, with a neat rag carpet on it, "because Lottie suffered with cold feet," and a fire place in it, "for Lottie must have a fire when she had sick turns;" and two windows, "for all Lottie's living was fresh air;" and the only beauro and only rocking chair were in Charlott's room, because, as she said, "Susy had always some good reason at hand for giving her the best of every thing."

Our friends were undeniable what the world calls poor. But they had affection, intelligence, temperance, contentment, and godliness. Were they poor? We shall see. In the mean time, let us see if there is not some misuse of terms in this world. Morris Finley had "got in the world." He had so far secured his main chance that he was engaged in profitable business.—He lived in a good house, fashionably furnished; and his wife, like the wives of other flourishing young merchants, dressed in expensive materials made in the latest fashions. Neither Morris nor his wife were vicious. They were only selfish and ostentatious, with unfurnished minds, and hearts as empty as their purses were full.

"Husband," said Mrs. Finley to her partner, who had just come from Wall street to dinner, his mind engrossed with some unaccountable rise in the stocks. "Husband, mother has been here."

"Well, what of that?"

"She has given up her house."

"What of that?"

"Why, you know what of that as well as I do; she does not know what else to do next."

We must premise that Finley's transactions had made some unfortunate speculations; had died, and left his widow an unmarried daughter penniless.

"I am sure I cannot say what she is to do next," replied Finley; "she is lucky to have one daughter well provided for. What does she propose?"

"She did not propose any thing. She sat and cried the whole morning."

"Of course she cannot expect to have a home here."

"Of course not. I told her, said I, 'Mother, if I were to ask husband to invite you here, we could not accommodate you, for we have not room to spare, you know we must eat in the basement to keep the parlors in order for company; and in the second story there is only the nursery and our bed chamber; and one of the third story rooms we must keep for a spare room and, when Sabina Jane gets to be a little older she must have the back upper chamber; and so," said I, "mother, you see, if husband were perfectly willing, it is impossible.'

"She could not have expected it."

"Oh, no, she did not; but, then, a mother is a mother, you know, and I did not wish to hurt her feelings."

"I presume, my dear, Helen Maria can get a place as governess or teacher in a school; I heard her say she had attended to music and painting and French, and so on, at Mrs. ——'s school, for the last six years."

"So she has husband; but bless you! you know how girls learn things at school, and she never expected to have to teach."

"Expect or not expect, I'd get my money's worth out of these schools. I saw on your father's books three hundred dollars a year paid for Helen Maria's schooling for the last six years and this is what it has come to. Can't she teach geography or arithmetic, or some of them useful branches?"

"No, she never was fond of the useful branches; she had quite a pretty taste for music and painting, but then people are required to understand them so well to teach them. No, I don't see as Helen Maria can earn any thing but by embroidering muslin; she does that beautifully; and if there was only a place where work might be sold without it being known where it came from, she might earn considerable and no one be the wiser for it."

"Nonsense, wife! We have not got above our relations' working for their living, though you may not be obliged to. Why can't your mother take a boarding house, and then Helen Maria might assist her?"

"Oh! Helen Maria can't do any kind of housework; besides, she is delicate, you know. Now mother was brought up to it; and when I proposed a boarding house, she said if she had any security to offer for her rent—"

"Ah, there's the rub! I hope she don't expect me to offer; for you know, my dear; I make it an invariable rule never to endorse, but in the way of business, for those who endorse for me."

"What is to be done, husband, if she can't get into any way of supporting herself? She must live, you know."

"And I must support her, hey?"

"No, I did not say that; but we can't let her suffer. What would people say?—there are always enough to talk you know."

"Yes, yes: well, I suppose I must advance the first quarter's rent, or something towards it. Oh! a thought strikes me; I know a house that will just suit, belonging to some old maid or widow, or somebody that lives up the country. The man that has the care of it ain't particular about security. I'll make the bargain for her—save her at least a hundred dollars.—That's just as good to her as if I took the money out of my own purse and put it into her's. I am glad to do your mother a good turn now and then in this way. I ain't one that holds to shrinking poor relations."

"Nor I, I am sure, and I told mother so;—but I told her not to look to you; for, says I, mother, you know we have a very expense family, and there are certain things we must have, and husband says he will always keep on the safe side."

"Yes, trust Morris Finley for that. Folks that mean to go ahead in the world must avoid unnecessary expenses. Has the man been here about the curtains"

"Yes; and I find the fawn, with blue borders, cost, for each window, twenty dollars more than the others."

"Bless my soul! how is that?"

"The fixtures are very showy and expensive—I don't make a point of those—but the blue and fawn are such a lovely contrast, and such a match for my carpet. If there is any thing that I do care about, it's a match."

"But the price, wife, is enormous."

"But it is not more than Mrs. Johnson Smith gave for her's."

"Are you sure of that?"

"Positive; Miss Sally told me so, and Miss Sally made them up. I should not depend on what Mrs. Johnson Smith said, but she always makes it out that her things cost more than any body's else; but I can rely on Miss Sally."

"Well, if that's the case, take the blue and fawn.—I hope I can afford what Johnson Smith can; but mind and make your bargain with that woman before hand; work by the piece, just as you and she can't agree to do by what that old fraud mother cut her bonds. Get your work done as well and as cheap as you can; for, remember, we must avoid all unnecessary expenses. But what keeps the children, my dear?"

"I am sure I don't know, my dear: I have been out making visits all the morning. Sabina Jane's not good for nothing now a days—always trotting away there."

"What ails Sabina Jane? seems to me she does nothing but loaf."

Mrs. Finley opened the door to explain, and in rushed a pale little child, with a bit of plum cake in her hand.

"Take care, Judy," said the mother picking up the crumbs which the child scattered rapidly; "you should not let Sabina Jane come into the parlor—it's no place for children."

"She would come, ma'am."

"Oh, Sabina Jane my darling go back to the nursery, that's a good child."

"I won't, I won't."

Mrs. Finley, in a low voice to the nurse—"Coax her, Judy,—tell her you'll take her out to walk."

"I can't take her out, ma'am,—my foot is lame."

"Oh, only just tell her so, to pacify her.—Stop, Sabina Jane, and listen to mother: Sabina Jane shall go out walking in Broadway, and have on her pretty velvet cap, and her cloak all trimmed with pink—here, that's a good girl!—now she'll go with Judy—make her look like a little beauty!"

The little dupe returned to the nursery, and in two minutes was bawling louder than ever, having been quieted just that time by her mothers precious lessons in lying and vanity.

THE MONEY COINER.

BY THE AUTHOR OF "VILLAGE LIFE."

Look on them—they call no man master,
And whose serve will you find the [illegible]
Young.

There is not a word in the whole vocabulary of the English language more frequently misapplied than the word 'Unfortunate.' Mr. A. a respectable merchant of my acquaintance, neglected, one cold winter's night, to take care of his store fire, and before morning the building with half of his fortune in it was reduced to ashes; nothing would suit my old friend Timothy Tandem, when he came out to see me last January, but he must drive across the ice on the Shippany creek; he was warned that it was hazzard, but on he dashed, and his fine horse and gig, worth something like eight hundred, went to the bottom; and his pocket book, containing the whole proceeds of his corn crop, a handsome sum, was missing when he came out; and my next neighbor, who has all the celebrated harangue of Poor Richard at the readies by heart, and retails more proverbs than he sells bushels of corn, forgot the other evening to put up a pair of bars that led into an eight acre grain field, and next morning he found six or eight of his cattle had made a repast upon it that proved fatal to one half of them. My poor friends are pitied for their misfortunes, and those mysterious dispensations of Providence have each occasioned their nine days of wonderment; while Jack Hoit, the robber, who was sent to the State Prison a month ago, on a ten years' apprenticeship, did not hear a sympathetic sigh from the concourse who listened to his sentence, all agreeing that the punishment was scarcely equal to the crime for which it was inflicted.

This Providence, about which so much is said, I believe is, after all, a fair dealer, and I made up my mind in respect long before I came across the little sentence I have placed at the head of my narrative. When we meet with losses and are suffering under the effects of our own errors and carelessness, we cry out—"Unfortunate! unfortunate!" ascribe the disaster that overtake us, to the hand of an overruling power, and are ready to question the justness of our punishment; while these losses and disasters are the natural consequence of our own doings, and could not in fact be prevented from falling upon us but by the direct and particular interposition of an almost miraculous power.—This will be illustrated as I proceed to introduce my readers to an honest, genial soul, as ever lived, Charles Clemens, of Alesbury, alias "The Money Coiner," a good Glove acquaintance of Bob Hawthorn of Hobson Hill, and whose hammar is at this moment sounding in my ear.

Charles came down to Alesbury from among the mountains, just before I left the village, to reside in Philadelphia. He was a raw country lad, and so awkward in his manners and appearance, that the boys of the village used to crack many a joke upon the front below and the clock-mark address. For lack of a better place, he was apprenticed to Giles Overshoot, the white-smith. It was a poor business in a country where power looms and water spoons were served up at the dinner table; but Giles, who was a lazy fellow, and of course like everybody else, at the shop. When him Charles learned the business, and with credit, from a variety of circumstances, his master supposed it to be.

By the time the silver dollars began to become scarce, Charles had become a master blacksmith himself, and had his shop full of customers, for Giles had left the village, and the blacksmith's shop was closed. Charles was now in his twenty-second year, and was considered a handsome young man, and a great favorite with the ladies. He was very fond of music, and played the flute in the village band, and was a member of the choir. He was also a great favorite with the children, for he was always ready to join in their sports, and would make them whistles out of the young willow shoots, and play marbles with them. He was very fond of reading, and had read every book in the village library, and was always ready to lend them to his friends. He was very fond of walking in the woods, and would often go out with his gun, and bring home a brace of partridges or a rabbit. He was very fond of fishing, and would often go out in the boat with his friends, and bring home a basket of fish. He was very fond of dancing, and would often go to the balls and parties in the village, and was always the life of the party. He was very fond of singing, and would often sing songs at the parties and balls, and was always encored. He was very fond of playing cards, and would often play with his friends, and was always a good player. He was very fond of chess, and would often play with his friends, and was always a good player. He was very fond of skating, and would often go out with his friends, and was always a good skater.

Charles Clemens was a native of Alesbury, and was born in the year 1800. He was the son of a respectable farmer, who lived in the neighborhood of Alesbury. Charles was the eldest of a family of seven children, and was brought up to the business of a farmer. He was a good scholar, and was fond of reading, and was always ready to lend a book to his friends. He was very fond of walking in the woods, and would often go out with his gun, and bring home a brace of partridges or a rabbit. LITERARY UNION;

LADY'S BOOK
AND
Ladies American Magazine.

The Proprietor of the Lady's Book, grateful for the unceasing patronage which he has received, announces to the Ladies who have so generously sustained their own "Book," that he has made new arrangements for their gratification. Convinced that he could not in any way more effectually promote the interests, or realize the wishes of his numerous subscribers, he has secured the valuable aid of MRS. SARAH J. HALE, of Boston, to whose superintendence the literary departments of the Lady's Book will hereafter be committed. For many years Mrs. Hale has conducted the American Ladies' Magazine—a periodical of uncommon merit, which will be merged in the Lady's Book. Her abilities are familiar to her countrywomen, and on both sides of the Atlantic she enjoys a high reputation as one of the most graceful, vigorous, and accomplished of our female writers.

Under the judicious management of Mrs. Hale, the Lady's Book will not only maintain the excellent character it has already acquired, but it is confidently expected that it will be rendered more eminently worthy of the support of those to whose interests & amusement it has been, & will continue to be, especially devoted. The superior talents and fine taste of the Editor will give the whole a new impulse; while her own contributions, and those received from her personal friends, and other correspondents, of whom a number have already promised, will render it almost entirely original. Amongst others who are expected to furnish matter for the Book may be mentioned,

The Proprietor of the Lady's Book is determined to use every means to maintain the superiority which his publication has obtained. For years he has gone steadily on in the course of improvement, and he flatters himself that his facilities are such as to give his work eminent advantages over his competitors. His very ample subscription list enables him to be liberal in his expenditures upon it, and whatever can be accomplished by enterprise and cost he is resolved to effect. Besides the persons above-mentioned as contributors, he has expectations of receiving original articles from several distinguished female writers in Europe: and as an inducement to writers of our own country he is willing to pay for every article adopted by him as suitable to his publication, as high a rate of remuneration as will be given by the proprietors of any other periodical in the U. States.

The mechanical portion of the Lady's Book will likewise be improved. The typography will be more elegant, and the paper of a better quality. During the year portraits, engraved on steel, of several eminent ladies will be given: and every second month a colored plate, illustrating the prevailing fashion, will be furnished. Other embellishments, calculated to enhance the appearance and increase the value of the work, will be introduced: and generally, everything will be done that the most untiring purpose of making the Lady's Book pre-eminently entitled to patronage can suggest. With the experience he has acquired during a long course of years devoted to the business, and the aid to be derived from the distinguished lady who will henceforth be associated with him, the Publisher is confident that he will be able to render the amplest satisfaction to all who may become his patrons. He, therefore, with a just reliance on his claims to support, respectfully solicits a continuance of that liberal encouragement which has so kindly been bestowed on his endeavors.

The terms of the Lady's Book are Three Dollars per annum, payable in advance. All orders must be addressed to

L. A. GODEY,

100, Walnut Street, Philadelphia.

As the publisher of the Lady's Book is connected with other popular periodicals, he suggests, for the convenience of remittance, the following system of

Waldie's Literary Omnibus
Novel and Important Literary Enterprise!!

NOVELS, TALES, BIOGRAPHY, VOYAGES, TRAVELS, REVIEWS, AND THE NEWS OF THE DAY.

IT was one of the great objects of "Waldie's Library," to make good reading cheaper, and to bring literature to every man's door." That object has been accomplished; we have given to books wings, and they have flown to the uttermost parts of our vast continent carrying society to the secluded, reception to the literary, information to all. We now propose still further to reduce prices, and render the access to a literary banquet more than two fold accessible; we gave and shall continue to give in the quarto library a volume weekly for two cents a day; we now propose to give a volume in the same period for less than four cents a week, and to add as a piquant seasoning to the dish a few columns of shorter literary matter, and a summary of the news and events of the day. We know by experience and calculation that we can go still further in the matter of reduction, and we feel that there is still verge enough for us to aim at offering to an increasing literary appetite that mental food which it craves.

The Select Circulating Library, now as ever so great a favorite, will continue to make its weekly visits, and to be issued in a form for binding and preservation, and its price and form will remain the same. But we shall in the first week of January 1837, issue a huge sheet of the size of the largest newspapers of America, but on very superior paper, also filled with books of the newest and most entertaining, though in their several departments of Novels, Tales, Voyages, Travels, &c., select in their character joined with reading such as usually should till a weekly newspaper. By this method we hope to accomplish a great good: to enliven and enlighten the family circle and to give it, at an expense which shall be no consideration to any, a mass of reading that in book form would alarm the pockets of the prudent, and to do it in a manner that the most sceptical shall acknowledge "the power of concentration can no further go." No book which appears in Waldie's Quarto Library will be published in the Omnibus, which will be an entirely distinct periodical.

Terms.—Waldie's Literary Omnibus will be issued every Friday Morning, printed on paper of a quality superior to any other weekly sheet, and of the largest size. It will contain,

1st. Books, the newest and the best that can be procured, equal every week to a London duodecimo volume embracing Novels, Travels, Memoirs, &c. and only chargeable with newspaper postage.

2d. Literary Reviews, Tales, Sketches, notices of books, and information from "the world of letters," of every description.

3d. The news of the week concentrated to a small compass, but in sufficient amount to embrace a knowledge of the principal events, political and miscellaneous, of Europe and America.

The price will be two dollars to clubs of five subscribers where the paper is forwarded to one address. To clubs of two individuals, five dollars; single mail subscribers, three dollars. The discount on uncurrent money will be charged to the remitter; the low price and superior paper absolutely prohibit paying a discount.

On no condition will a copy ever be sent until the payment is received in advance.

As the arrangements for the prosecution of this great literary undertaking are all made, and the proprietor has submitted all his plans to a generous public for many years, no fear of the multiplication of the contract can be felt. The Omnibus will be regularly issued, and will contain in a year reading matter equal in amount to two volumes of Waldie's Cyclopedia, for the small sum mentioned above. Address, post paid,

ADAM WALDIE,

56, Carpenter Street, Philadelphia.

☞ Editors throughout the Union, and Canada, will confer a favor by giving the above one or more conspicuous insertions, and accepting the work for a year as compensation.

 A specimen number, nearly ready, will be forwarded to those who request it, provided such request is free from postage. 12

WILSON'S SPHERICAL VANE

OR

WEATHER WHEEL.

A CARD.—We the undersigned hereby certify, that we have examined a saw mill situated on the Saco river in this town, which has had three wheels of different descriptions running in it with very little success, not exceeding from fifty to sixty cuts in a minute at the best pitch of water, that said mill has been improved by Mr. Thomas Chase, by introducing the above named wheel for sawing, running both the carriage, and hoisting in logs, that at the time we saw it there was three feet two inches head and fall of water, the saw then cut one hundred and ten times in a minute, and we have no doubt but that, four feet and a half head and fall, would increase the speed to from one hundred and twenty five to thirty five cuts per minute, the other two wheels (for moving the carriage and hoisting logs) operate with astonishing power and speed, in short we cheerfully say that this mill as improved by Mr. Chase, far exceeds our most sanguine expectations, or any thing in water power we have yet seen, and think the above wheel a valuable improvement in mills, and highly worthy the patronage of the public.

THIS DAY IS PUBLISHED,

FOSTER'S CABINET MISCELLANY;

Embracing a carefully selected series of the newest Publications on a variety of subjects.

Interesting to all who desire to make themselves acquainted with

THE BEST LITERARY PRODUCTIONS OF THE FIRST WRITERS OF THE DAY.

Published in weekly numbers, 72 pp.—Elegantly printed in handsome duodecimo form, in a new and clear type, and on good paper.—Price 12½ cents per number, or $5 per annum, in advance.

Although this work is published periodically, in order that the public taste for novelty, may in some measure be accommodated, it may either be procured in numbers, weekly, in volumes, each work complete and distinct in itself, or by subscription by the year—so, that while it unites all the advantages to some readers, of the small outlay at stated periods attendant upon periodical publications, those who may have an objection to take upon themselves the trouble of preserving single numbers have the option of purchasing entire whatever of the series they may think proper, in any manner congenial to their wishes or circumstances.

The work commenced with

ST PETERSBURGH, CONSTANTINOPLE AND NAPOLI DI ROMANI.

BY BARON VON TEITZ.

Which may be had complete, either in numbers, or neatly bound, forming volume one of Foster's Cabinet Miscellany.

It is followed by A Steam Voyage down the Danube, with Sketches of Hungary, Wallachia, Servia, Turkey, &c. by Michael J. Quinn, author of a "visit to Spain," &c. The last part of which has already appeared.

Both these works have been noticed by the reviewers of England with unqualified praise.

The proprietors of this work impressed with the opinion that independently of abstruse and learned treaties, there is an ample demand, on the part of the reading public, for literary matter of a higher denomination than the new works of fiction, which at present so prodigally disseminated among them, and for books that shall have a higher aim than the mere amusement and gratification of the idle; he feels assured also that with a moderate degree of care and research, selections may easily be made among the literature of the day, which shall not be deficient in rational amusement, even when they are serving the nobler purpose of informing the mind, or improving the experience.—With this opinion and assurance he has been induced to commence the present series, in which he will endeavor to embody subjects worthy of being collected and retained, for the purpose of re-perusal, reflection, or reference, and which may not deteriorate the character of a gentleman's library.

Mr. Constable of Edinburgh, was the first to discover that a signal service might be performed to the world, by embodying, in a cheap and compact form, a series of publications that should have utility as a primary object, but rational amusement in the manner of their connection. By issuing a small portion at a time and in frequent succession, he conceived that he should impel the generality of his readers—not the studious or the literary ones, of course—to keep up with the publication, and not allow their reading to run in arrears. By a well timed and well judged selection of articles it is believed that he accomplished, not only this ostensible object, but a secret and more important one.

Gradually a desire for more solid reading increased in society and that which originally began in the hope of amusement was continued in the wish for information. Useful matter was published at a comparatively cheap rate, it was continually increasing, yet the expense was hardly felt. Encouraged by his success, the enterprising publisher began to insert new matter in his selections; and the public in return rewarded his exertions and expenses by enlarged patronage.

Were Constable's Miscellany current in the United States perhaps the publisher of the present series would not have found it expedient to commence the latter work. But, be it remembered, that in speaking of the cheapness of Constable it is but relatively—as compared with the publications in Great Britain generally—which is dearer than that of any part of the world. Constable's Miscellany is published at about half the English rate, but the present work proposes to be at about one third even of Constable.

The object then of Foster's Cabinet Miscellany may be easily explained. It is to introduce to the reading public, a series of works that shall lead entertainment with information—that shall take off the edge of the voracious appetite for mere fiction, which has been brought on by too great a profusion of works of that description—that shall gradually form a collection of writings which may be referred to with satisfaction at some future day, or to compare with a more recent writer; that may be an ornament to any private library or collection; and that shall be cheaper than ever has been issued.

The works selected into Foster's Cabinet Miscellany, while in every range of polite literature. It is intended to suit, as much as possible, every taste, and by an agreeable variety of subjects as well as styles, to keep up a healthy excitement for rational entertainment. Works of great length, of severe and deep investigation, and of the more abstruse sciences will, of course, find no place here. It is of the cheerful, elegant and easy writings of the day, that the selections will be made: always keeping in view, that only substantially good works will be introduced: in order to which the publisher will use every means to satisfy himself, before he commits a work to press.

It is trusted that the Cabinet Miscellany will be a mélange of all that is valuable in modern literature; it will assuredly be the medium of introducing works which would hardly find their way to the American public generally, through any other source. It will present them at prices varying from one fifth to one sixth and in some cases even one-eighth of the English cost;—and the execution, it is hoped, will meet with general approbation.

NOW PUBLISHING.

FOSTER'S REPRINTS OF

BRITISH PERIODICALS,

Comprising the following Standard Reviews and Magazines.

1. The London Quarterly Review.
2. The Edinburgh Review.
3. The Foreign Quarterly Review.
4. The London and Westminister Review.
5. Blackwood's Magazine.
6. The Metropolitan Magazine.

The extensive circulation of the original editions of these old established works have attained in Europe, and the reprints in the United States, sufficiently evince the estimation in which they are held by the reading public of both countries, and renders comment, with respect to their literary character, uncalled for on the part of the American Publisher. The typographical execution of the Works is quite equal, in every respect, to the English editions, and they are sold on the following Terms:—

REVIEWS.

For the four Reviews per annum,	$8 00
Three of them,	7 00
Two of them,	5 00
One of them,	3 00

MAGAZINES.

For Blackwood's Magazine, per annum,	$5 00
Metropolitan,	4 00
Blackwood and Metropolitan,	8 00

For the four Reviews Blackwood and Metropolitan Magazines, $16 per annum.

☞ Country subscribers should forward a year's subscription in advance, or a city reference.

The July numbers of Blackwood and Metropolitan Magazines, recently published, commenced a volume of each of these works. Blackwood may be had from the beginning of the American series, July, 1825, complete in three vols. and the Metropolitan from January of the present year to July, in 1 vol complete.

To the Hon. Senate and house of Representatives of the State of Maine in Legislature assembled, A. D. 1836.

THE undersigned, inhabitants of the northeasterly part of Lovell, in the County of Oxford, humbly represent, that as they are now situated in said town, they are obliged to travel six miles over a very bad and hilly road to attend town meetings, trainings, &c. that they form one school district with about ten scholars, consequently derive little benefit from attending.—They further represent, that they are situated but about three miles from the place of public business in the town of Sweden, and one mile from a school house in said town.

They therefore for the above reasons, pray your Hon. Body that so much of the northeasterly part of the town of Lovell, with the inhabitants thereon, as is situated to the south of Keezer's river until it intersects the town of Sweden, be set off from said town of Lovell and annexed to the town of Sweden,—and as in duty bound will ever pray.

Consumption!

DR. REALFE'S ASTHMATIC PILLS

HAVE, from their extraordinary success in giving instant relief, and in curing Colds, Coughs, Asthmas, Difficulty of Breathing, Wheezing, Tightness of the Chest, Pain in the Side, Spitting of Blood, Chillness and Shiverings that precede Fevers and Lung Complaints generally, become one of the most popular medicines known, and are sought after from every part of the country, even in spite of the astonishing success which has attended their administration in the above complaints, frequently giving the most unexpected relief, after every other remedy had failed, and persons had given themselves up in despair of a cure.

They have been known to cure persons supposed to be far gone in consumption, and exhibiting all the appearance of approaching dissolution.

And such have been the salutary effects of these Pills, even in hopeless cases, as so far to mitigate the sufferings of the patient, as to enable him to pursue his business and avocations, and give to it a positive comfort they never expected to enjoy.

The operation of the pills is wonderful in easing respiration, quieting the cough, and procuring comfort.

Common colds are frequently removed in a few hours.

 "Although, (says a person, speaking of these pills,) my wife has tried various medicines of the first celebrity, for an Asthmatic difficulty, (or affection of the lungs,) which at times was exceedingly distressing, coming far to her house for days and weeks together, she finds the trembling gives her relief which Realfe's Asthmatic Pills do to easing her respiration, quieting her cough, and giving her a comfortable rest." And this is the testimony of hundreds or thousands. The relief which aged people, as well as others, experience from the use of these Pills, is astonishing, and unequalled by any medicine to many, and are in fact to some, indispensably necessary to their comfort, and almost to their existence!

A Physician and one of the Proprietors, (not a quack) in the country, wishes to hear from a gentleman in this city, who can recommend to him a suitable location for the sale of these Pills, [illegible]

Price, whole boxes, 50 cts.; half do. 25 cts.

DUMFRIES' EYE-WATER!

FOR sore or inflamed Eyes—nothing known gives such immediate and comfortable relief. Current sore eyes, the effect is most salutary. Where the complaint has been of long standing, the most unexpected and desirable relief has been found in the use of this Eye-Water, after every other remedy has failed. Persons who have used it, pronounce it without hesitation the best preparation for these complaints they have ever met with. Price 25 cents a bottle.

 None genuine, unless signed on the outside printed wrapper by the sole Proprietor, T. KIDDER, successor to the late Dr. Conway. For sale with the other "Conway Medicines," at his Counting Room, No. 99, next door to J. Kidder's Drug Store, corner of Court and Hanover streets, near Concert Hall, Boston;—and by his special appointment, by S. CROCKETT & Co., Paris Hill, SMITH & BENNETT, & W. E.
